15 December 2015

Developments of the Gatehouse Website. The comprehensive bibliography and gazetteer of the castles, fortifications and palaces of medieval England and Wales.

The Castle Studies Group Journal for 2015-16 arrived on my doorstep last week with a number of interesting articles. With regard to English and Welsh sites James Petre's has a paper on the siege of Kenilworth Castle in Conisbrough Castle Chapel Turret. Were the row of holes above the fine chapel window places where symbolic and beautiful doves appeared or the site of a hoarding and/or crane for lifting goods to the roof top?

1266, Charles Hollwey a paper on polygonal towers, Neil Guy a masterful survey of portcullises, and I had a paper on the tower of Conisbrough Castle. The conference report of the spring meeting held at Wrexham has some detailed reports of a number of sites in North-East Wales, notably Hawarden Castle, Flint Castle, Denbigh Castle and town defences, Holt Castle and Ruthin Castle.

Neil Guy kindly sent me reference to a couple of papers published in Archaeologica Cambrensis David Stephenson's paper on Ewloe Castle and Hugh Brodie's paper on 'Apsidal and D-shaped towers of the Princes of Gwynedd' (see the listing of the castle of Welsh Princes)

All the relevant references have been added to the various site pages.

Design Changes

I've made a few slight changes to the design of the county listing. Visually I've replaced the small country flag at the top of the list with a county flag or crest. It should be noted this is entirely a decorative feature, many of these flags are a very modern invention although some, such as three Saxon seaxes of the flag of Essex, are based on traditional designs. See the Flag Institute website for more information. Of more practical use I've added previous and next buttons in the left menu which should ease the navigation through these county lists.

Festive greetings to everyone.
